THEY that go down to the sea in ships can now call up the dear ones at home and tell what they forgot to take with them.

Sunday, Walter S. Gifford, head of the big telephone company, said to his telephone operator, "Give me the commander of the Leviathan." In a few minutes he was talking to the steamship Leviathan, 200 miles out at sea. That would surprise Jonah.

In New Jersey, Thomas N. McCarter, announces a cut of $1,300,000 in light charges for the coming year. The intelligent idea is to charge less for electricity and thus encourage the use of more current.

This program was mapped out at Atlantic City over a year ago by Matthew S. Sloan, president of the New York Edison Company.

GEN. GRANT'S great-granddaughter, Mrs. J. S. Hanbury, formerly the Princess Cantacuzene, has given birth to two daughters, in London. If those little girls grow up, and have sons, and are poor, so the sons will have to work, those boys should amount to something.

Unfortunately the successful man, by his very success, makes it hard for his descendants to succeed for at least a generation or two.

WASHINGTON reports that "the administration," which means President Hoover, is anxious to have Calvin Coolidge elected senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. Coolidge would render distinguished service in the Senate. It would be hard for any senator to talk more than two hours, before that cold blue New England eye, and hard for any senators to spend millions recklessly.

But Mr. Coolidge, like the young gentleman in "Excelsior" doesn't believe in turning back. He and Mrs. Coolidge fixed the White House all over, cedar closets and everything. When President Hoover is through with it, Mr. Coolidge, it is said, would like to return to the "old home."

GERMANY'S Luthansa, ablest commercial flying organization in the world, is pushing its lines into Asia and South America.

And intelligently, Germany lends Luthansa $1,500,000 to help.

If Germany after the war, compelled every year to pay hundreds of millions in gold to the allies, can afford $1,500,000 to support one commercial aviation undertaking, what could the rich United States do, if it had the intelligence to do it?

WHAT is the news? There is a good deal.

The storm continues to rage off the British coast. 100 lives lost, six more rescued. England has been cut off from France, too rough on the water, too rough in the air.

The British and French will think harder than ever about a tunnel under the channel.

JAY P. MOFFATT, representing the United States at Geneva, signs the protocol that, if nothing happens to prevent, will land us in the World Court.

THE senate is to be heard from but probably it will agree with Moffatt and the European powers that Americans are not able to decide important questions for themselves and need a little help from Europe. Not one of the senators or any other that helps to put the United States in the power of a hostile European court would think of referring his own private affairs to a court of European judges hostile to him.

He would say "No, an American court is good enough for me." The United States Supreme Court ought to be good enough for the United States.

PASTOR ADVISES YOUNG PEOPLE

Rev. Oliver Atkinson Speaks In Free Methodist Church.

The Rev. Oliver Atkinson, district elder of the Free Methodist church, last night outlined "Five Reasons Why We Should Be Saved in Our Youth" in an address to members of the Oakland church.

The five reasons, as the Rev. Mr. Atkinson pointed out, are: God says so; we owe it to ourselves; we owe it to our parents; we owe it to God; and we owe it to all our associates.

There is no greater reason than the first, according to the speaker. "There can be nothing more unfair," the Rev. Mr. Atkinson declared, "than to choose to spend most of our life in sin and rebellion against God while we are dependent upon Him. It is easier to be saved in our youth because that is the habit-forming period of our life."

KEEPER SLAIN, WARDEN HELD BY CONVICTS

Acting Governor of New York Calls Troops.

15 LEAD REVOLT

Additional National Guard Units are Ordered Out.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 11.—(INS)—Acting Governor Herbert Lehmann ordered National Guard troops to the state prison at Auburn, N. Y., today following receipt of word that a riot had broken out, that the principal keeper had been slain and that the warden was being held hostage by 15 convicts who had started a revolt.

Two Shops in Flames.

Franklin Ward, head of the National Guard, to order all companies from Syracuse, and other nearby cities, to proceed at once to the scene and surround the prison.

Two companies at Auburn are on the scene, it was reported.

Best information at Auburn was that the principal keeper had been slain and that the warden was being held hostage. Two shops were said to be in flames. Information came here to the effect that shots were heard inside the enclosed grounds.

Warden Held in Office.

The warden, Edgar S. Jennings, who is being held in his office by the convicts, had taken precautions to prevent just such an outbreak. Considerable publicity followed a revolt in Auburn prison last summer.

Since then there has been discussion how to meet such a contingency were it to arise again. The national guard troops at Auburn were cognizant with conditions and they were apprised of the method of procedure that would be adopted in the event of another outbreak. It was believed the Auburn guardsmen reached the scene shortly after the revolt started.

Firearms evidently had been smuggled into the prison. Precautions against firearms had been taken following the outbreak of last summer. At that time the convicts had taken possession of the prison. Since then all arms have been kept outside the prison walls.

The national guardsmen rushed to the scene were part of the 108th Infantry.

Nearly 1,600 in Prison.

Fifteen prisoners led the outbreak, according to best available information. Their action was concerted. Just what their method of procedure was had not been reported in information from Auburn.

There were 1,550 convicts quartered at the Auburn prison.

Calling out of the militia was at the instigation of Dr. Raymond Kieb, commissioner of correction, who notified the acting governor of the emergency. Dr. Kieb's assistant, George W. Jones, said this information was that the 15 prisoners had announced to the warden that if he didn't "open the gates" he would be killed. Jones said he had been told that all of the 15 revolutionists were armed.

Mrs. Jennings, the warden's wife, may also be a prisoner. One report here was that she had been locked up in her home which is on the prison grounds.

WELLSVILLE, O., Dec. 11.—High school boys were warned against false ambitions in choosing their life work last night in an address delivered by J. Adams Pfuffer, head of the Beacon Boys' bureau of Boston, Mass., at meeting in the high school auditorium.

Pfuffer, an authority on the subject of "Educational and Vocational Guidance for Young People," pointed out to fathers present that they should consult with the teachers as to the best means of finding the proper places for their sons at the completion of their high school courses.

Boys were urged to cultivate the acquaintance of older people in the matter of seeking advice. Wider experience, Pfuffer said, could be obtained in this manner which would prove of lasting benefit in the later years.

The best experience for a boy, he said, could be obtained by placing him on a farm where he would come in contact with various kind of work. Salesmanship was advanced by the speaker as a good profession. This, he said, required the gift of meeting people properly and being a good conversationalist.

In closing, Pfuffer said that many opportunities were offered in this state which had more diversified industries than any other state in the union.

Night Life Gets You if You Don't Watch Out!

War Vet almost takes count, but pals help.

HOW would you like it if every two weeks you had to give up your good night's sleep, and work all night instead? This is what happened to W. H. Huggins of 90 Savannah Street, Rochester, New York. When he came back from the War, he took a night "shift" job.

"It certainly shot me all to pieces," said Mr. Huggins. "I was licked before I started. My pals noticed that the night shift got me, so during a 'lunch' period in the middle of one night one of them said to me, 'Hug, I bet I know what's the matter with you. This irregular life gets us all unless we watch out. Why don't you try Nujol? Most of the boys are onto this little health trick. Try it!'"

"Well, that very night on the way home I got a bottle and within a week I felt like a different person. I wouldn't know myself. You can lick any job, even a night one, if you get the poisons out of your system regularly. Nujol sure did it for me!"

That's the great thing about

This kind of man wins no matter where you put him

Nujol. It absorbs the poisons in your system (we all have them) and cleans them out regularly. It cannot hurt you no matter how long you take it, and it forms no habit.

Nujol contains no medicines or drugs. It is simply the world's most famous method of bodily lubrication.

You can get a bottle at any good drug store, in a sealed package, for less than the cost of a couple of good cigars. Begin today to prove to yourself how Nujol can help you to lick the toughest job and feel bully!

Santa Claus Appeals For Help

There will be happiness in the hearts of 193 boys and girls in the Fairmount Children's home, near Alliance, on Christmas morning, if the East Liverpool district cooperates with Santa Claus, in response to the appeal of Mrs. Harvey McHenry, members of the Columbiana county visiting board.

Inmates of the home, which is jointly supported by Columbiana and Stark counties, have written to Santa, asking for mechanical toys, kiddie cars, wagons, blocks, airplanes, doll carts and beds, books and other gifts which more fortunate children usually receive on the Feast of the Nativity. And they are dependent upon him, for, through death, divorce or other causes, most of them have lost a father or mother, or both parents.

At the same time, Santa Claus hopes to comply with the wishes of young musicians in the home band for clarinets, cornets, saxophones, violins and other instruments. The institution does not have funds to purchase this equipment.

The visiting board member has appointed aides who will collect toys and other gifts if the donors notify Mrs. McHenry. A telephone call will be immediately answered, and thus East Liverpool district people shall have an opportunity to share Yuletide joy with a fatherless or motherless boy or girl.

Let's make it possible for Santa Claus to visit the Fairmount home!

Flapdoodles

Lloyd George, veteran of many a bitter struggle, delivered himself of a new name for an old type recently. Flapdoodles, the fiery little Welshman terms those political gentlemen who are more generously outfitted with the will to say than the ambition to do.

The opprobrious term was applied in this specific instance to the personnel of the League of Nations, whose inefficiency in the promotion of pacific intentions is blamed on the fact that it is "run by a bunch of flapdoodles." Even from Lloyd George, qualified to judge almost anything to which he pleases to turn his attention, this is a strong statement. Its condemnation is more cutting when it is recalled that Lloyd George was one of the pioneers of the League of Nations movement. Three days before Woodrow Wilson demanded a "general association of nations" as the fourteenth of his fourteen points, Lloyd George urged the same thing in different words, Wilson, whose ideal was rebuffed by a doubting world, died fighting for it. Lloyd George, repudiated to a like degree, lives on to tell parliament what is wrong with the league.

President Hoover's statement that men under arms include reservists and the fact that the League of Nations has seen fit to number only peace armies of the world, which are only a nucleus, are the bases for Lloyd George's wrath.

It is quite apparent that Lloyd George looks at the League of Nations and sees nothing there but talk. His new appellation, while vigorous, is understandable.

The continuation of the League of Nations, however, will not be determined either by the hostility of the American senate or the condemnation of Lloyd George. Those in sympathy with the ideal will continue to fight for it and accept its present status as an inevitable stage in its growth. One thing is certain: the league will be as good as the men who run it, and no better.

Slump Statistics

Ever since the first reports of the stock market break were broadcast, there has been a great deal of discussion as to the effects of the "panic" on business. Much of this discussion was intelligent and carried on by men accurately informed; much of it consisted either of pure rumor or facts distorted by the pressure of the moment. All of it was touched up to give it the color which is the requisite of interesting gossip.

The National City Bank, of New York City, has done a great service in preparing statistics based on a survey of the actual results of the market scare. Figures were obtained from 157 leading department stores, which reported sales during the first three weeks of November. The stores were geographically representatives of the entire country.

Eighty-two of them, or fifty-two per cent, reported increases over last year, and fifty-three, or thirty-four per cent, reported decrease. The remaining twenty-two reported practically unchanged from the corresponding period in 1928.

Increases reported ranged from one to forty-three per cent and averaged slightly under seven per cent. Decreases ranged from one to thirty per cent and likewise averaged less than seven per cent. The actual monetary amount of sales was not requested, but if it be assumed that all the stores were of approximately the same size and that all gains and losses could be given the same weight, the composite result would be an actual gain of one per cent.

Allowance must be made for growth in the size of the stores making reports, but this is probably balanced by unfavorable weather conditions during the period covered by the report. Such factors are impossible of accurate measurement, but the deduction is probably close to actual conditions.

In the light of these figures, uncolored by personal opinion and representative of a wide territory, there is additional reason to believe that the frightening rumors concerning the state of pre-Christmas trade were based, as such stories are so likely to be, on highly localized situations.

HASKIN LETTER DAILY

By Frederic J. Haskin

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 11—Probably no country in the world is so thoroughly blanketed with cooperative agricultural organizations as Switzerland. A study of cooperation in the Alpine republic is contained in the Agricultural Survey of Europe being prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture. The chapter on Switzerland shows cooperatives for every farm in the whole of Switzerland. At a time when President Hoover, the United States Department of Agriculture, the Federal Farm Board, and other agencies working for farm relief are laying so much stress on cooperative action in production and marketing, this information on Swiss experience is especially valuable.

The reason why there are so many as nine memberships in cooperatives for each Swiss farm is due to the fact that one individual may be a member of several cooperatives; also, that different members of a peasant family may each belong to a separate cooperative so that the farm itself will be fully represented. Thus, one member of a family will be a member of a dairy cooperative, another of a hog cooperative, another of a general cantonal cooperative, and so on. Although the farm population of Switzerland is only about 1,600,000, the enrollment in cooperatives is nearly 1,500,000.

The history of farm cooperation in Switzerland is much the same as elsewhere, save that it has been more highly developed. In the late eighteenth century in Europe, agriculture was the least profitable of industries and the farm populations endured bitter hardships. It was a period of military and political disturbances and the rural population, saddled with many feudal survivals, was seriously oppressed and little considered. This economic pressure resulted in the formation of the Swiss Peasants' Union which still flourishes.

With the turn of the century matters improved. The French Revolution loosed many bonds. Taxes were reduced, large estates were broken up, and the peasants obtained a greater measure of freedom than they had ever known before throughout Europe. Markets improved and the Swiss were quick to take advantage of these better times through cooperative effort.

Under the general leadership of the Peasants' Union local cooperatives came into being. Precise dates of their organization are not available, but it is known that 345 local cooperatives were in existence prior to 1850. In the next half century there was a gain in the number of locals and the number of memberships each year.

The latest figures on the dairy cooperatives show 3519 organizations with a membership of 102,555. Of these cooperatives 3108 are federated with the Swiss Dairy Industry Society. Of the total dairy cooperatives 2163 are organized for the purpose of selling their milk, 943 for the purpose of manufacturing cheese and butter, and 376 for the purchasing of articles which the farmer must buy. Buying and selling activities usually are done by different organizations, a farmer having membership in both.

The value of being prepared was well exemplified when the World War demoralized European business. The Swiss warehouses were stocked with perishable cheese which could not be moved by individual effort and had the sole dependence been upon private initiative unquestionably large losses would have been sustained. Schooled in the idea of cooperative effort, the Swiss dairymen quickly formed the Swiss Union of Cheese Exporters, the various interested cooperatives subscribing to the capital stock with some assistance from the government. The government granted the union a monopoly on cheese export and in this manner the business was speedily organized in such a manner that the situation was saved.

When there is such full representation of farms in the cooperatives the government may fairly treat with them as constituting in fact the interested public. Just as an export monopoly in the cheese industry was granted the cooperative organization formed during the war, the government has granted to the Swiss Central Butter society a monopoly of imports. Oddly enough for such an important dairymen country, Switzerland imports a good deal of butter, butter being regarded largely as a by-product of the cheese industry which comes first in consideration.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 11.—After traveling over several hundred miles of desert and seeing thousands of cacti, it struck me rather funny that any one should raise them here, but I saw a cacti farm in a side yard in Hollywood last evening. They are being more and more used for decorations in homes which follow the Spanish style.

Speaking of decorations, family portraits are a standard item of merchandise now. For an eighteenth century living room or foyer, what could be better? They are family portraits, right enough. Whose family, however, is left to your own imagination.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—Russian aristocrats so long exiled in New York are no longer newspaper copy. They have become absorbed by a vast economic machinery in the business of making a living. Their former pomp is now expressed in a doorman's uniform here and there. And that is all.

For a time they rode a wave of sympathy which swept them to fashionable teas and select dinner parties. But people became glutted with repetitious tales of devastated estates, pillaged jewels and drops from high places. The Russian became overweighted with his inborn emotionalism.

When he found cold listeners, he began to plunge into whatever work he could find. And hundreds, whimpering with woe, found America the opportunity land it had been pictured. More than 100 buffeted exiles have become successfully established after working up from menial jobs.

The educated Russian is an adaptable creature. His bearing, his charm of manner and polished air of good breeding fit him for most any role. He is especially proficient in salesmanship. Two have made extraordinary records in the insurance world and a number as bond salesmen.

The Russian ladies of culture have also displayed unusual talent in making their way in the commercial world. Several of noble heritage are presiding over smart specialty saloons along Park and Madison avenues. Four of the high born are housekeepers in select hotels.

While there are still gleanings for crumbs from rich tables the majority have given a splendid account of themselves. The Russian cafes lodged in the dim side street cellars have shrunk from a hundred to a handful. They were once the founts of expatriated anguish.

Here the sad eyed with thoughts as grey as the waters of the Neva, collected to touch glasses and live over the happy days when Lenin and St. Petersburg and one of the gayest capitals in all the world.

In a New York hotel shortly after the war a waiter confided he was a Russian prince. I accepted his confidence with mild skepticism. Two years ago I saw him among the fashionable hotel guests.

YOUR HEALTH

An Ounce of Prevention is Worth a Pound of Cure.

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

There is no doubt that the high tension of modern life has its effect on the health of the public. The emotions are permitted to reach too high a tension.

Yet it is not so much the work we do that tires the body organism. The fatigue results from over-stimulation of the nervous system.

Over-stimulation of the emotions causes numerous ills. Among them are digestive disorders, high blood pressure, disturbances of the vital organs, diabetes, goitre, and plenty of other troubles. Perhaps the avoidance of over-stimulation of the emotions is not the most important thing in keeping health. But it is so important that physicians now are turning their thoughts and study to it as a basic cause of disease.

It is a recognized fact that under some conditions "a strong emotion can inflict a physical injury, just as truly as a knife," as Dr. Charles P. Emerson said at a recent meeting of the Indiana University School of Medicine. "Our emotions are kept under such a high tension," he said, "that they cannot fail to fatigue the organs through which the emotions express themselves physically."

And what follows when you are "tired out" from the day's strain on the emotions? Do you spend the night dancing to jazz music? Do you indulge in any other exciting pursuit where your jaded nerves are kept taut until all hours of the night?

Living in the world we do, we need rest and quiet to offset the noise and confusion of city life. We must have it to overcome the rush of business, or the effect of the contacts we have in whatever environment we are placed.

We know that mind does react mightily on the functions of the body. The person who is always worrying over this thing and that, the one who holds to anger, or fear of things, is most surely going to have ill health sooner or later.

Since that time of Hippocrates, physicians have sought to have their patients use their emotions to better their condition. To keep a cheerful state of mind and a bright outlook helps very much toward recovery in many a serious illness. Keeping a calm, optimistic attitude and a happy heart does something marvelously curative to the body.

To transform an unhappy patient into a happy one causes a distinct chemical change to take place in the entire system. Very soon he finds himself better.

Physicians today are making a profound study of these strange emotions. Never before have they been able to deal with many of their problems so efficiently as now.

Praise.

Do you seek too much credit for the worth-while things you do? Are you displeased if you do not receive compliments for proficiency? Are you still a little child wanting praise?

Why should you expect to be especially commended for doing acts of kindness or being helpful to somebody? Your own self respect should not need that sort of thing. If anything but self respect prompts you to good deeds you are not motivated by the right thoughts.

There is little satisfaction in doing good to others with the hope of recognition for it. The greatest pleasure to be gained from helping others is in personal satisfaction to have made some one happier.

It is a reflected pleasure, deeper than the actual pleasure, deepment of something bestowed by another upon yourself.

To have performed an act of merit indicates good spirit back of it.

To get the greatest satisfaction out of anything that is praiseworthy it must come from within yourself.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE: I am a girl of twenty and I went with a boy for about four months. Now he doesn't come to see me any more, only about once a month and I am crazy about him. His people like me and I go to his home. Please tell me what I can do about it to get him back.

BLUE EYES. You would be a very unwise girl to try to force the attentions of the young man. If his interest has waned, you should have too much pride to attempt to regain his affection. Just be sweet and natural and friendly when you meet. Make yourself as interesting as possible, that is, by taking an interest in the things which he likes. But don't wear your heart on your sleeve, for in this way you'll only drive him further away from you. A man likes to feel that he is the pursuer, not the pursued, and as soon as he feels that the latter is the case, he runs away as fast as possible.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE: I am a girl 19 years old and recently have been having dates with a strange boy who is now working in my home town. My family object to me going with him. They say that I don't know anything about his character, and he may be a married man, but he voluntarily told me all about his home and family and many incidents from his past life that indicate that he is a man of noble character and good breeding. He acts very nice when he is with me and has never said or done anything to make me doubt his character.

I wish you would please tell me whether to keep having dates with him, or to quit as my family wish me to do.

SMILES: You do not indicate whether the young man has met your family or not. If not, would it not be possible to invite him to your home, and let your family judge for themselves. It is obvious that they have your welfare at heart, and you should abide by their decision whatever it may be.

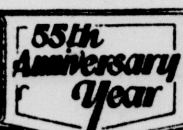

THE CALVES OF THE LEGS AT NIGHT? A.—This may be due to poor circulation, overexertion or constipation.

M. B. Q.—What do you advise for indigestion?

A.—Correct your diet and avoid poor elimination.

"Rio Rita" Breaks Theater Records

Attendance record in a number of the leading big city theaters have been shattered recently during the showing of Florenz Ziegfeld's musical comedy, "Rio Rita," now at the Ceramic.

The Orpheum theater at Seattle, Washington, having a seating capacity of 2,700 persons, reported receipts of $29,500 for one week, with no vaudeville attraction. At the Erlanger theater in Philadelphia, where 1,900 persons can be seated approximately $24,000 was taken in at the box office during the fifth week that the picture was shown. Woolsey play the comedy roles they created in the original stage production. Dorothy Lee, whose piquant "baby talk" singing was responsible for a large measure of the success of "Syncopation" aids them in their antics.

Don Alvarado, Helen Kaiser, former "Follies" girl; Georges Renant and Nick de Ruiz, first tenor of the Metropolitan Opera company, are others in the cast of 400.

Plenty of Laughs In "So Long Letty"

A gorgeous bit of tomfoolery is "So Long Letty" which opened yesterday at the State theater. Light, airy, not at all serious, and yet exciting, it is one of the best farces yet produced as a talking picture. It is high in entertainment value, and with plenty of laughs, many of which are credited to the lanky Charlotte Greenwood, who made a hit in the role of Letty in the stage production of this excellent comedy.

The story is strictly modern, with the dialogue being written by Broadway's famous wise-cracker, Arthur Caesar, and Robert Lord, the scenarist. The plot deals in wild parties at a hotel and beach resort, the spirit of the whole thing being adequately summed up in the clever song, written by Grant Clarke and Harry Aski, "Clowning." The spirit of clowning pervades the story throughout.

The plot deals in a mix-up of husbands and wives just at the time a crabby millionaire uncle comes to town with his two flapper granddaughters, and mistakes Patsy Ruth Miller for the wife of his nephew. Bert Roach, after having taken a violent dislike to his real wife, Charlotte Greenwood, and to Patsy Ruth Miller's husband, played by Grant Witheres. So an exchange of husbands and wives is executed, the party-bound, Witheres, going over into the next door cottage with the party bound, Charlotte Greenwood, while Bert Roach, who likes his wives domesticated, goes with Patsy Ruth, who, of course, simply loves to cook and sew and make a husband comfortable.

GETS MILLION

News from Chicago filled the humble home of Mrs. Louis Hutchinson, of London, England, with joy when she learned that through the demise of an aunt who had gone to Chicago more than 27 years ago, she is the owner of $1,000,000.

Gary Cooper Wins In "Virginian" Role

One of the most beloved characters ever delineated by the pen of an American novelist—that of "The Virginian," hero of Owen Wister's classic novel, has fallen to the happy lot of Gary Cooper, handsome young Paramount star, who is seen and heard in the part at the American theater. It is Cooper's first all-dialogue role.

"The Virginian" is an admirable story for all-talking production. An outdoor theme with all the glamor of the open range in pioneer days, it seems to be made to order for the new technique of the movies—namely recording what the eye can see and what the ear can hear.

Walter Houston, famous Broadway stage star and more recently a sensation in the talking films, "Gentlemen of the Press" and "The Lady Lies," is seen and heard in the role of "Trampas," the double-dealing rustler who provides the menace in the play.

Richard Arlen and Mary Brian are also co-featured with Cooper in the roles of Steve, the wayward buddy, and Molly, the winsome "school marm."

Special To The Review. For hair which she alleges she lost as a result of a permanent wave operation, suit for $1,500 damages has been filed in municipal court by Miss Terra Rose, Napier street, against Mrs. Frances Bontempt, owner of a West Sixth street beauty parlor. Miss Rose is represented by Attorneys Ben L. Bennett and James E. Davis.

The petition says that the defendant has been "rendered permanently bald and nervous, making it impossible for her to sleep." She alleges that she "suffers a drawing pain in the back of the neck which pulls her head to one side" as a result of the operation.

Puts Neuritis Out Of Business

Many Swear By ORANGE ROOT as Only Relief From Neuritis Torture.

Mr. O. H. Wade, 222 S. Centre st., Cumberland, Md., says: "I suffered from neuritis and rheumatism so bad it was impossible to raise my arms above my shoulders."

I tried a number of so-called tonics supposed to be beneficial for my ailments, but the only results obtained was a disordered stomach. They put my stomach in a very bad condition, and left me weak, nervous, and unable to eat a thing. All the time neuritis and rheumatism kept me in constant misery. The pains in my shoulder were so sharp and piercing that I could not get a minutes' rest or even sleep at night on account of the awful suffering.

Limbments only tended to chase the pains to my arms, back and limbs.

My strength left me entirely, and I just felt gloomy and miserable day in and day out. Friends who had taken this ORANGE ROOT with good results advised me to try it. I can now truthfully say that it is the only thing I ever took that gave me glorious and INSTANT relief from all my suffering and rid me forever from my miseries. Two bottles not only drove out all the neuritis and rheumatism, but toned up and strengthened my delicate stomach. The Golden Nuggets keep my bowels open and my liver in fine working order. They do not gripe, cause any bad after effects, but keep me FREE of any accumulation of intestinal poisons. My whole system seems invigorated and built up, for I now have a dandy appetite, eat anything and everything seems to agree with me. The tonic qualities of ORANGE ROOT are superior to anything I ever heard of, and I gladly recommend them to my friends suffering as I did.

These nationally known remedies are for sale here by MATHEWS MEDICINE STORE and all the best druggists everywhere. IN-SIST upon ORANGE ROOT—accept nothing else recommended as "just as good." If your local druggist cannot supply you, write direct to the H. & J. Laboratories, Parkersburg, W. Va.

FOREST LOVE

By Hazel Livingston

Thrilling Story of Romance of Modern Girl

"Oh, I'm so afraid—so afraid!" She sobbed uncontrollably clinging to him as a drowning woman clings to a rescuer, with clutching, tearing hands.

"Shut up, will you? Anita, stop clawing my neck! You're all right! You're safe. It was I the tree all most fell on, not you—shut up, I say!"

"But I'm so afraid—Jack take me home. Oh, I want to go home—"

She wouldn't stop that incessant moaning. It kept him from thinking, and he must decide something, and quickly. The storm gave no promise of abating. The rain came down in torrents, and the din of the thunder was deafening. There was something unreal and done about it. Like a storm scene in a cheap, melodramatic play.

But there was nothing unreal about the rain. It fell in icy sheets, chilling them to the bone. Impossible that an hour ago they had been warm. Jack shook himself irritably. He was cold and stiff and unnerfed. They were at least seven miles from the lodge and the horses were tired and stubborn. It would take hours to get back over the slippery rock and the sunken narrow trails that had turned into rivers, carrying the water in a rushing, bubbly brown torrent down hill. He stared at the weeping woman disgustedly. "Well, get back on the horse!" he said brutally, "unless you want to be left behind."

"I can't—I can't—"

"Then walk—I'm going to ride!"

"Oh, help me—help me—I'm so sick—so afraid—" She turned her streaked, ravaged face full upon him and held out beseeching, skinny arms. With her wet, stringing hair and her loose, sagging mouth she looked like one demented. He shrank from her. "Keep your hands off me, will you?"

Her quick, heartbroken wait told him that he had taken the wrong tack. The patient work of weeks was lost. They were right back where they were six months ago, she suspicious, he desperate . . . and no way out . . .

"Oh, why do you hate me? What have I ever done," she moaned, rocking back and forth in her misery, forgetting everything but his revulsion, impervious at last to the rain and the cold.

That couldn't go on. He looked around dejectedly, with the half formed idea of finding some cave, some shelter from the unceasing rain. And he thought he saw, high on the mountain above, a brown cabin, half hidden by the brush.

He put his cold hands in his pockets, and stared, trying to penetrate the distance. He thought he saw a grey thread winding up to it . . . a trail through the brush and stone.

With something like hope he ran to the bushes a few yards up the trail, and crashed through them, fighting his way up the steep bank to a more level place above. There was no doubt about it, it was a trail.

"There's a cabin above," he told her when he came back. "We'll make for that. The horses will go back to the lodge, and they'll send out a searching party presently. We're in luck!"

She remained motionless, leaning against the trunk. Her face was turned to the mud wall.

He suppressed an almost overwhelming desire to shake her. "Are you coming, or aren't you?"

"I can't—I can't—"

"Then stay there!"

He did not really intend to leave her. He would have come back for her. But when she lifted her head and saw him disappearing into the brush above she gave a long, gurgling cry of pure terror and stumbled after him, thrashing wildly through the brush, stumbling, pausing, crying "Wait—don't leave me—wait!"

She caught up to him where he was resting on a boulder trying to get his breath. She had torn her face in the brush. A little thread of blood trickled down her chin. "Wait—wait!" she panted and she clutched at his leg, breathing in loud, rasping gasps.

He gave her a hand and then toiled on, breaking the brush aside for her, struggling against the urge to run on ahead, to put this panting, repulsive woman out of his sight.

She followed, whimpering under her breath. When the brambles scratched her, or the stones hurt her feet she sobbed aloud. But she kept close at his heels, sometimes on all fours, sometimes lurching drunkenly around perilous turns, careless of her footing. Once she staggered and caught herself just in time.

He thought, "If she fell it wouldn't be my fault!" They had come to a bad place. Evidently the trail had been unused since the winter. Rain or snow had washed it almost away, leaving scanty footing on the sheer, barren face of the cliff. Hundreds of feet below, the river boiled down the floor of the narrow wedge-shaped canyon. Above them the rock overhung, forcing them to the edge of the perilous path. For a moment he hesitated. It seemed useless to try it. But they had come so far, gone over so many bad places. He could see the cabin plainly now. It meant warmth, dry clothes, steaming coffee.

He crept out of the narrow point, cursing himself for his nervous fears. It was not like him to be dizzy. Showed what a woman like Anita could do to a man . . . suppose he should fall, and she make it safely to the cabin! She'd never die . . . strong and willing . . . fool that he was to ever think . . .

What was that? The gravel was slipping under his feet! . . . He shut his eyes . . . mustn't get dizzy . . . steady there . . .

After an age of breathless waiting the miniature landslide ceased. He was still there. The rain had stopped, too, and the sun was breaking through the clouds. Another step or two and he'd be past the danger. He waited a moment, gathering his nerve . . . it was bad business, bad business . . .

"Jack—wait—"

"Stay there—wait till I see—"

"Jack—help me— I —" She wouldn't wait. She was right after him, puffing, sniffling, slipping, grabbing at him . . . she'd pull him with her . . . "Let go!" he screamed . . . they'd both fall . . . Let go, I tell you . . . Let go! But she wouldn't let go, so he pushed . . .

Anita was falling. Rolling over and over, slowly, like something in a slow moving picture. He watched her, blinking. She turned over and over, and then she lay still, on a great, jutting boulder.

Jack pulled a large silk handkerchief out of his pocket and mopped his face. He sat down and watched the motionless heap that was Anita. She never even screamed. Sweat broke out all over him. She was dead. He had shoved her over. I killed her . . . I finally killed her . . . Anita, my wife . . . I killed her!"

Did he say that out loud? He jumped up in a panic. Must he care . . . must do something . . . get down to where she was . . . call somebody . . . pretend . . .

But he couldn't think. He couldn't remember how he got past the bad place, or where he was going. All he could remember was the look on her face as she reached for him and the feel of her thin body as he put out his hand to save himself . . .

He sat there watching. His wet clothes steamed in the sun.

MIDLAND ZONE PLANS $1,225,000 PROGRAM DURING YEAR

STREET, ROAD, SEWER JOBS ARE ON LIST

Building Operations Will Cost About $125,000.

COUNTY TO AID Midland Avenue Improvement is Chief Project.

Special To The Review. MIDLAND, Pa., Dec. 11—Approximately one million, two hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars will be expended in construction work during 1930 in the Midland district, contractors, borough representatives and county commissioners estimated today.

Street improvements, including the surfacing of the Fairview road and improvement of the Midland avenue will amount to more than $125,000, while building construction will cost about $600,000, while land developments, east of Midland, will not $100,000.

Chief among the projects is the improvement of Midland avenue, from Spring lane to Twelfth street. The Steubenville, East Liverpool and Beaver Valley Traction company, has been asked to bear part of the expense. Cost of lowering sewers in the 12-block stretch has been set at $125,000.

Fairview Highway Graded. Section of the Fairview highway which lies within the borough limits has been graded. Borough Engineer Richard Steebner expects the slag surface to be laid next summer will cost nearly $5,000. This road connects Fairview and Midland View with the Steel City via Spring Lane between Fourth and Sixth street early in January. The law-makers recently returned a petition to property holders informing them that they must bear the cost, $4,500.

Building permits issued by the borough secretary's office this year total $319,663.59. This new record for construction will be surpassed next year, contractors believe.

Beaver county commissioners plan a $600,000 highway improvement program. The Tuscarawas road, from the Barclay school to Ohioville will be improved, while the highway past the Ellwood City Country club, known as the "Country club road," will be built with state aid.

Standard Oil Project Rushed. Standard Oil company of New Jersey is investing approximately $400,000 in the bulk terminal for gasoline and gasoline by-products on the former Gray and McMaster farms, east of Midland, and wharfing facilities on the river front.

The Pennsylvania Railroad company is extending a temporary single track at an expense of $8,000 from the yards of the Pittsburgh Crucible Steel company plant to furnish the oil concern property with rail service.

Four land developments, east of Midland, controlled by Midland and Pittsburgh interests, are rapidly being built upon. Nearly $100,000 will be needed to carry out the street and sewer plans contemplated for the subdivisions.

One concern plans to lay out a park with artificial lake and ponds and athletic grounds besides out-lining streets in the little colony and furnishing water and gas to the residents.

GEORGE NICK, JUNK DEALER, ADMITS CRIME

Christy Bazaras, Laborer, Slain on Street.

HINT JEALOUSY

Prisoner Will Face Charge of Murder Today.

Special To The Review. LISBON, O., Dec. 11—Christy Bazaras, aged 37, Erie railroad laborer, who, police say, was shot twice in the stomach by George Nick, 38, married and the father of eight children shortly after 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, died in the Salem City hospital at 6:55 o'clock last night.

Immediately after the shooting, Nick walked into the office of Mayor Robert B. Clark, threw a 32 caliber revolver on the desk and surrendered.

"Sure I shot him," Nick said. "I told him to stay away from my home and what I'd do to him if he didn't."

He will be arraigned before Justice of the Peace M. K. Zimmerman today on a charge of murder.

Wounded Man Falls in Store. Nick operates a junk business at South Beaver and West Washington streets.

The shooting occurred on the east side of Beaver street as Bazaras was on his way to a grocery store. Nick, police say, charged Bazaras with intimacy with Mrs. Nick.

Despite his wounds, Bazaras walked the short distance to the Campsey grocery store, told Mrs. Anna Campsey of the shooting, and then fell to the floor.

Dr. Joseph M. Robinson was summoned, and Bazaras was taken to the Salem hospital. Assistant Prosecuting Attorney George L. LaPorte accompanied the wounded man.

Wife Denies Charges. Deputy Sheriff George Harroff, Prosecuting Attorney John E. Banknecht and Mayor Clark questioned Mrs. Nick.

"Did Bazaras ever call at your home?" Mrs. Nick was asked by Banknecht.

"He never did," she replied.

"Were you ever intimate with Bazaras?"

"I never was — I'm not that kind."

Mrs. Nick then told Banknecht that her husband had ordered her to leave her home, which she refused to do, and that recently she talked with Probate Judge Lodge Riddle about her domestic troubles.

Nick said he complained to Mayor Clark several weeks ago that some one was coming around his home at night and asked that his home be watched. Mayor Clark then instructed Marshal Dalton Pike to watch the Nick residence.

Victim's Last Statement. Prosecuting Attorney Banknecht, accompanied by Deputy Sheriff Harroff, then went to the Salem hospital, where a stenographic report was made of the last statement of Bazaras.

Bazaras denied that he had been intimate with Mrs. Nick.

"I was walking to the store to buy bread when Nick shot me," Bazaras said.

Bazaras lived 20 minutes after he had been taken from the operating table.

Nick has lived in Lisbon for about 20 years, and was married 16 years ago. A brother resides in Detroit, Mich.

Married 16 Years. Bazaras, employed on the Lisbon branch of the Erie railroad for 10 years, lived in railroad camp car.

"We were married 16 years ago in Lisbon, Mrs. Bessie Nick said. "George located in Lisbon before I came to Lisbon from Greece. I have four brothers and five sisters, all living in Greece except one brother, Christ Nick, who resides in Canton."

"Why did your husband shoot Bazaras?" Mrs. Nick was asked.

"I cannot tell you that," she replied.

Nick maintained that Bazaras attempted to break up his home, and that after he finished his work Tuesday afternoon, he changed his clothing, put a gun in his pocket and then he saw Bazaras walking on South Beaver street, he accused him of prowling about his home.

"Of All Your Gifts This Is The One I Most Appreciate"

Wise HUSBAND — who selects the right gift for his wife at Christmas. Wiser still the man who realizes that today's housewife and mother is a sensible woman. She does want you to make your purchase wisely. She does want hours of leisure — time for herself and her family — youth — and the means of keeping it. And she wants you to think of these things when you buy her Christmas gift.

No gift can be more expressive of your desire to lighten her household tasks than the new Thor Electric Washer. No gift will live longer in her memory. For it brings her the hours of freedom she wanted — precious hours she used to spend at the back-breaking, health-ruining job of ironing — washing by hand.

CHESTER CAGERS OPEN SEASON AT AMBRIDGE

Four Vets Nucleus Of Squad

Initial Tilt Billed For Saturday Night.

CHESTER, W. Va., Dec. 11. — With four veterans back from last year's squad, Coach Roy Keightley has a rather firm foundation upon which to construct his 1929-30 basketball squad at Chester high school.

Davis, Brown, Werkheiser and Thomas will form the nucleus for this season's Purple and Gold cagers. Brown and Davis were what might be termed regulars on the prior quint.

Keightley will have additional strength in Gibbs, Caughey, McKinney, Hibbs, Abrams, Sayres and Lynch from the Reserves.

Despite this, however, the Chester mentor will have his difficulties patching up holes caused by the graduation of McKown, Maple, Finley, Johnson and Kimble. The latter scored 160 points during the season or an average of approximately 11 a game.

About 20 candidates are working out nightly with the first game of the season scheduled Saturday night at Ambridge.

The complete card follows:

Dec. 14—At Cambridge.

Dec. 20—Weirton (boys and girls) at Chester.

Jan. 10—At Weirton (boys and girls).

Jan. 11—At Newell (boys and girls).

Jan. 17—Open.

Jan. 18—At Wellsville (boys and girls).

Jan. 24—Bethany at Chester.

Jan. 31—New Cumberland (boys and girls) at Chester.

Feb. 1—At Bethany.

Feb. 4—At Midland.

Feb. 7—At Wellsville (boys and girls) at Chester.

Feb. 14—East Liverpool girls at Chester.

Feb. 21—At New Cumberland (boys and girls).

Feb. 22—Newell (boys and girls) at Chester.

Feb. 28—Midland at Chester.

March 1—At Toronto (boys and girls).

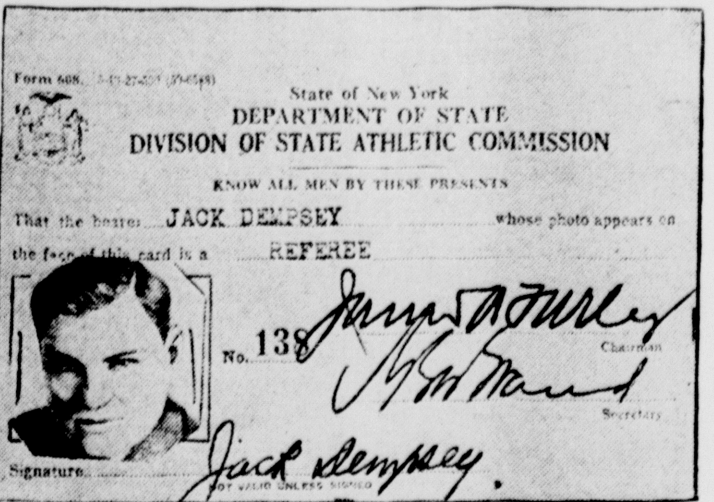

Pfeiffer Ashland Grid Captain.

ASHLAND, O., Dec. 11. — Ward Pfeiffer, of Meyersdale, Pa., was elected captain of the 1930 Ashland college football team at the annual banquet here last night.

Pfeiffer, a junior, has filled the tackle berth on the team for the last two seasons.

Letters were awarded to 19 members of the team, eight of whom are seniors.

JACK DEMPSEY IN NEW RING ROLE

Here are the referee's credentials which admitted Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, to the ring in Madison Square garden in the new role of referee. Jack was the third man in the ring when Otto Von Porat lost on a foul to Phil Scott. It is believed by many that this will mark the former champ's return to the ring in a new capacity.

Risko Bouncing Back Again As Threat to Title Claimers

Stopping Jim Maloney And Beating Ernie Schaaf, "Rubber Man" Shows Return To Old Form.

Johnny Risko is rightly called "the ring's rubber man"—a bounding batter who just won't stay licked and who, by stopping Jim Maloney of Boston recently, and beating Ernie Schaaf Monday in Cleveland put himself in position again to legitimately challenge Jack Sharkey or any other heavyweight "big shot."

About a year ago fistic experts thought Max Schmeling had ended Risko's "big time" career when the German scored a technical but highly convincing knockout of Johnny in the ninth round of a lively Madison Square Garden bout. Seemingly, the Cleveland had been slipping prior to that Schmeling defeat. It was generally conceded that Risko was "through" when he couldn't even stay ten rounds with the comparatively inexperienced Max.

However, that sharp Schmeling setback seems to have given Risko a new lease of fighting life. It aroused the good-natured Clevelanders from his indifference towards training that had accounted so much for slipping form. In all his experience as a boxing manager, Danny Dunn says he never saw a fighter work so hard and so consistently as Risko is doing to get at least one more big chance.

That bounding baker boy once boxed Sharkey out of the chance to meet the Champion Gene Tunney. Risko clearly outpointed the Gob on that occasion, and while Sharkey has shown marvelously improved form since then, the Rubber Man would like nothing better than another set-to with the ex-sallor.

A few years ago when Risko was checking such comers as Sharkey, Maloney, Von Porat, Paulino, etc., in ten-round tilts, the late Tex Rickard called him "the spoiler" of others' championship hopes. Nearly all title prospects were matched with Risko and he "spoiled" them one by one, except Tom Heeney, who was awarded a close decision in their 10-rounder a little more than two years ago. That was a great money break for Tom and a sad one for Heeney. On the strength of it, Heeney was picked by Rickard and Tunney as the latter's final championship opponent. Johnny had to go on "softening up the tough ones" (and, some said, getting "softened" in turn) until Schmeling's mauling moved the referee to save Risko from further punishment.

Last Spring, the Rubber Man gave signs of old-time resiliency. He went into hard training, which soon showed results. A climax was reached when Risko shattered Jim Maloney's come-back in less than two full rounds with those bounding, bouncing assaults, that tagged him with that "spoiler" rep. Many think it unlikely, yet it is not beyond possibility that this boy who won't stay licked may spoil even Sharkey's imperial dreams.

N. CUMBERLAND NAMES CAPTAIN

NEW CUMBERLAND, W. Va., Dec. 11.—Scott Brown, fullback of the New Cumberland high school football team, was elected captain of the 1930 eleven at a banquet given recently by the junior class.

Coach Edward Vincent, in an address to the gridders, lauded their work and predicted a successful basketball season.

Will Meet Coaches Kerr and Hanley Monday.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Dec. 11.—Fifteen schools in the east, middle west and south were represented in the completed roster announced today of the all-star eastern football team which meets a similar western group in a benefit game at San Francisco on New Year's day.

The squad, which reads like a page torn out of a book of all-American selections, has been ordered to meet Coach Andy Kerr and Dick Hanley at Northwestern university in Evanston, Ill., next Monday where equipment will be issued, Monday night will see the squad on the way to the coast.

The complete list of the eastern team follows: Backs—Holm, Alabama; Edwards, Brown; Yablock and Dowler, Colgate; Glasgow, Iowa; Peters, Illinois; Caldwell, Drake, Northwestern; Nesbitt, Drake, and Brazil, Detroit. Tackles—Nagurski, Minnesota; Gordon, Illinois; Twomey, Notre Dame; Mooney, Georgetown. Guards—Cannon, Notre Dame; Anderson, Northwestern; Magai, Pennsylvania. Centres—Cox, Colgate, Erickson, Northwestern.

Ends—Roama, Dartmouth; Stahley, Penn State; Tanner, Minnesota; Seacrest, Washington and Jefferson.

YAROSZ, BURKE BOUT PLANNED

Ted Yarosz, the Foutts brothers' flashy junior welterweight who has hung up three consecutive victories in bouts at the Valley A. C., will return to the scene of his professional ring debut, Junction park, New Brighton, Pa., on Monday night, Dec. 16, in a six-round scrap with Billie Burke of Beaver Falls.

Johnny Rich, Cleveland 140-pounder, is paired with California Joe Gans in the 10-round main event.

In consecutive bouts at the Valley A. C., Wellsville, Yarosz won from Carl Patron, Cleveland, Billy Yeltz, Cleveland, and Billy Holt, Canton.

Burke is touted as a dangerous foe for Yarosz. At the present time he is working out with George Bretsch, Pittsburgh, former national amateur junior welterweight champion, whom Yarosz defeated last summer at New Brighton.

Frankie Porto, of Glassport, former local boxer, also appears on the card.

Barnard Hits Baseball "Chain Store" System

Major League Owners With Extensive Farms Are Inviting Disaster, Says American League President.

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—Like the chappie who hit himself on the head with a hammer because it felt so good when he stopped, the major league "farm" or "chain-store" operator cannot long survive without one thing or the other. His immediate need is education. If he doesn't recognize this, his future need is bound to be a new head. The baseball "chain-store" system is a menace to nobody, except the man who operates it, and to him, it is business suicide.

This, in substance, was the message to baseball of President E. S. Barnard, of the American league, as the two majors went into furious session again today. They had found nothing to do yesterday, so they decided they needed a little extra time this afternoon in which to finish the job in a thoroughly competent manner.

Tomorrow, however, they are to indulge in their annual joint session and it is then that Mr. Barnard may deliver himself of the doomsday warning to the St. Louis Cardinals, the New York Yankees and all those who operate minor league "stores," either extensively or otherwise. Others have feared the effect on baseball of the so-called monopolies the "chain-stores" may gain in the minor league field. It has remained for Mr. Barnard to express apprehension for the operators themselves.

Brands System as Uneconomic. "They are inviting disaster," he said, "and they will get it. The system is uneconomic, unstable. It means ultimate ruin. I ought to know because we had three excellent minor league franchises curl up and almost die on us when I was president of the Cleveland club. It is like the work of Japanese farmers. They till the soil so furiously that there is nothing left in it after a couple of years. So much for the reaction to the farm itself."

"Now then, what does the operator get out of it in player material? Often enough the players he needs are with clubs that are not under his control. He has to go elsewhere to buy when the theory of 'farm' operation is that it makes the owner self-sufficient. We have only to study the effect of the system to know that it does nothing of the kind."

"We can't make them sell their clubs; indeed, so greatly have some of those holdings depreciated, time might find trouble in selling. We can't even make them see that this fact is significant. All we can do is try to protect them against themselves."

Mr. Barnard didn't add any information as to how he hoped to make some of the die-hard minors accept the universal draft. This will be a good trick, even if he never does it.

One trial shows how Bayer Aspirin relieves sore throat; dissolve two tablets in quarter of a glass of water, and gargle well! Until you've tried it, you can't believe how quickly you get complete relief. You've often been advised to gargle for sore throat or tonsillitis, but it is what you gargle that counts. Gargle Bayer Aspirin, and you get results. Real relief, and the infection effectually reduced. To break up a cold, stop neuralgic pains and headaches from any cause, physicians say there's nothing better than Bayer. They will tell you, too, it does not depress the heart.
